Individual Study & Group Work

The Executive Master in EU Studies allows students the opportunity to study both individually and together with peers and experts to exchange opinions and views.

During their two years of studies, our students experience group work in various interactive learning formats, such as simulations, case studies and project planning.

During the eight in-person weekend workshops, our students:

- study and practise the different strategies of various actors in international relations;
- learn how to read and understand judgements of the Court of Justice of the EU;
- analyse various strategies of lobby groups;
- practise their presentation skills.

Simulations

Our students put their theoretical knowledge into practice with simulations of two European institutions.

→ Weigh up priorities, analyse strategies, take action

At the end of the first year during the Brussels workshop, students take on the role of a Head of State to negotiate and reach a unanimous agreement in a simulation of a European Council summit.

→ Prepare legal memos, write legal writs, take the stand

Then, during the second-year Berlin workshop, students put on their black robes for a simulation of a case before the Court of Justice of the EU.

They also train their debating skills in a 'debating society' exercise to discuss a specific controversial motion.

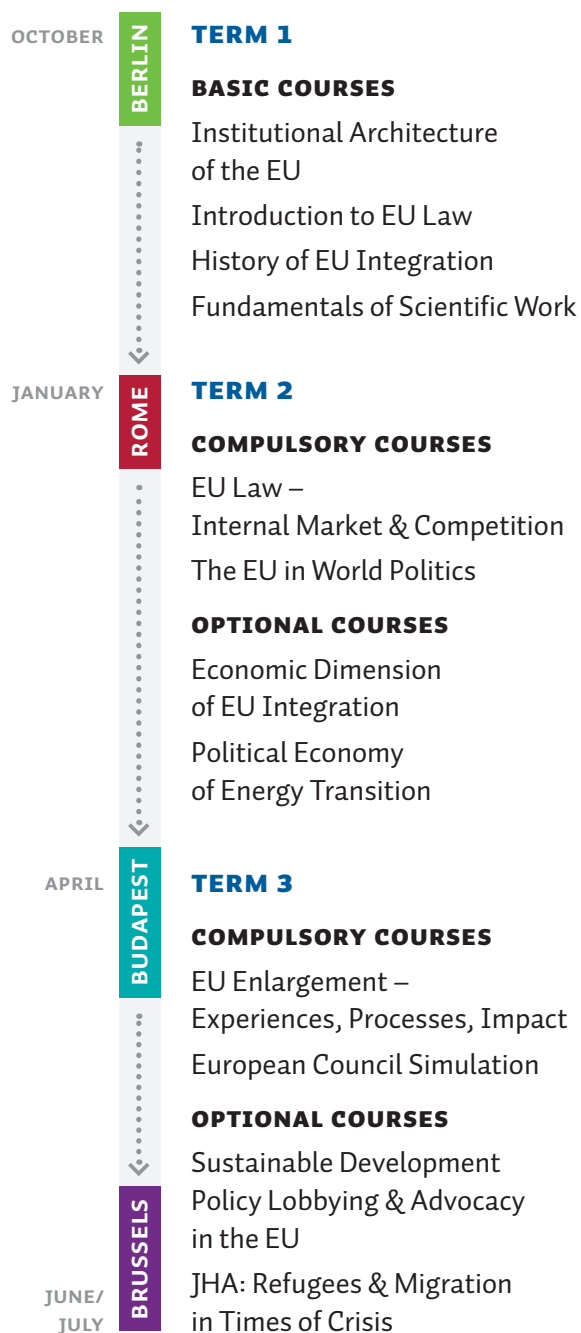

Project Work

At the start of the second year, students can opt for either 'Project Cycle Management and Logical Framework Approach' or 'Strategic Planning of Development Programmes'. They learn how to organise and manage their work in an autonomous way, with the support of our experts, and learn the different steps of project planning.

MEGGHI PENGILI

Visiting Research Fellow, University of Leeds, UK and Senior Advisor, TRENDS, US

The singularity and complexity of the European Union as a subject matter requires a multidisciplinary approach comprising a rich plethora of fields such as politics, economics, environment, civil society, law, foreign policy, international organisations, etc. The Executive Master in EU Studies offers not only all of this in a comprehensive platform, but also a unique network of professionals from a variety of countries.

ELENE KOBaidZE

Retention Programs & Replacement RRP Executive, Philip Morris International, Belgium

I highly recommend the CIFE Executive Master in EU Studies to individuals who are interested in the operational mechanisms of the European Union. The programme's strength lies in its interdisciplinary approach, effectively covering each aspect of European integration.

VANESSA BREBION

Senior Business Analyst at the European Investment Bank, Luxembourg

The hybrid format, combining remote learning with in-person workshops, is indeed ideal to find your own balance. It offers flexibility whilst also fostering strong connections with fellow students.

LUIS C. MELERO

Legal Labour Law Specialist at the International Labour Organisation, Switzerland

My experience during these two years of the Executive Master in EU Studies exceeded all my expectations. Not only was the content well-structured and interesting, but the pace of study was also accessible for everyone that seeks to combine work, domestic life and studies.

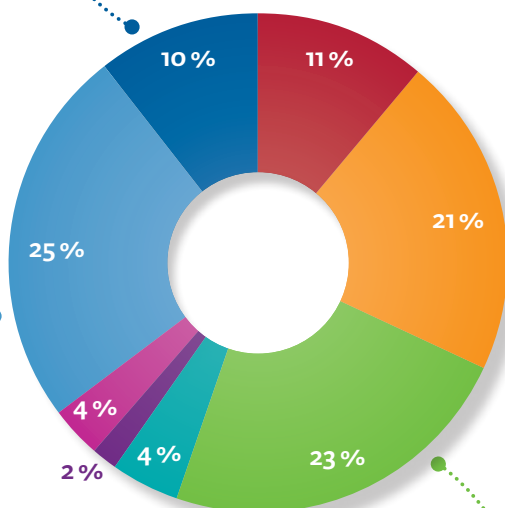

GENTIAN XHAXHIU

Regional School of Public Administration (ReSPA), Montenegro

The programme changed my understanding of the EU, its global role and 'modus operandi' and helped me make projections for the future connected to the forthcoming relations between the Western Balkans and the EU.
